COMPLAINT FOR TRADEMARK INFRINGEMENT, TORTIOUS INTERFERENCE, CONVERSION, AND DECLARATORY RELIEF

I. INTRODUCTION

1. This case concerns a corporation that has grown fundamentally dismissive of the rule of law. Amazon.com Services LLC (“Amazon”) has taken it upon itself to override the authority of the United States Patent and Trademark Office (“USPTO”) by unilaterally engaging in Kafkaesque reclassification games — labeling federally registered trademarks as “abusive” and inventing other pretextual justifications — to block rightful brand owners from controlling their listings and to pave the way for Amazon and its preferred sellers to overwrite established brands with fabricated or self-serving names.

Through these tactics, Amazon systematically misappropriates brand goodwill, falsely designates the origin of products, and infringes on protected trademarks in violation of the Lanham Act and state law. Amazon exercised imperial control over Plaintiff’s brands, treating rightful ownership as irrelevant. Amazon does not simply mimic a trademark examiner, a judge, or a legislature — it has usurped all three roles, overriding USPTO mandates, intellectual property rights, blocking lawful brand ownership, and imposing private brand decrees that hijack trademark goodwill without judicial oversight.

- 1 2. These misappropriations of trademark goodwill and false designations of origin are not
2 incidental mistakes. They are the direct result of Amazon’s deliberate policy of stripping
3 rightful brand owners from Brand Registry, blocking access to their listings to update photos
4 and specs, and enabling fabricated or meaningless brand names to overwrite decades of 5 established goodwill.

6 Amazon’s weaponization of pseudo-judicial reclassifications — including but not limited to 7 labeling brands as “abusive” — serves as a pretext for these deeper and more fundamental 8 violations of trademark law and marketplace integrity.

10 3. Benjamin Joseph Ligeri ("Plaintiff") is the owner of multiple registered trademarks and the 11 original creator of highly successful ecommerce listings — products that became so
12 culturally ubiquitous that they were organically advertised by mega celebrities like Miley
13 Cyrus without payment.

14 Plaintiff launched and sold these products predominantly on Amazon.

16 After years working in the Amazon space, Plaintiff operated a seller account known as 17 “Health and Household,” which would now be approximately twelve years old if Amazon
18 had not baselessly deactivated it in 2023, confiscating the funds, inventory, and brands
19 managed within.

20 Amazon used an arbitrary false pretense to seize Plaintiff’s legacy account, withhold over 21 $70,000 in pending disbursements (generated from hundreds of thousands of dollars in 22 discounted, platform-enriching sales from brands he owned personally), and revoke his 23 Brand Registry access — stripping him of control over his own trademarks and moving in to 24 absorb Plaintiff’s brand goodwill, undermine marketplace recognition, and misappropriate
25 the commercial equity Plaintiff painstakingly built over more than a decade.

- 26 4. Even without direct access to his original account, Plaintiff continues to license his 27 trademarks and supply products to authorized distributors who sell on Amazon. He has 28 fought, day and night and year after year, to keep his brands from complete obliteration.

1 5. Plaintiff has had to assist his licensed distributors through the chaos of Amazon hijacking
2 legitimate listings, Amazon blocking access to vital brand metadata, and Amazon preventing
3 products wholesalers lawfully purchased from being sold. Plaintiff has watched helplessly as 4 Amazon rebranded his listings under fabricated names like “AYOJOY,” “GEEGVV,” and 5 “EVRBLOCK,” while simultaneously blacklisting his trademarks from Brand Registry with 6 no meaningful explanation or recourse, and while ignoring any attempt to remediate
7 including letters to Amazon Legal and court action.

8 The cumulative effect of Amazon’s misconduct has been the systematic destruction of 9 Plaintiff’s brand equity, consumer goodwill, and marketplace recognition, inflicting ongoing
10 and irreparable harm to Plaintiff’s commercial interests.

11 6. This lawsuit seeks damages, injunctive relief, and a declaratory judgment affirming
12 Plaintiff’s rights under Federal and Washington law. Amazon’s conduct constitutes 13 trademark infringement, false designation of origin, unfair competition, conversion, tortious
14 interference with business expectancies, and the intentional misappropriation of Plaintiff’s
15 brand goodwill.

16 These violations were not isolated errors, but part of a systematic and willful pattern of 17 misconduct that breaches the most fundamental principles of intellectual property protection,
18 subverts the authority of the United States Patent and Trademark Office, and undermines
19 marketplace integrity.

21 7. The following facts, drawn from direct evidence, documentary records, and Amazon’s own
22 communications (some of which are attached as exhibits herein), establish the scope, 23 pattern, and deliberate nature of the misconduct alleged.

24 II. PARTIES

26 8. Plaintiff Benjamin Joseph Ligeri is an individual residing in Malabar, Florida. He is the 27 rightful owner of multiple registered trademarks including but not limited to “PrimeMed”,
28 Cool Chimpanzee,” “Point”, “Skin Deep”, and “Green Sky.”

- 1 9. Defendant Amazon.com Services LLC is a Delaware limited liability company
2 headquartered in Seattle, Washington. It conducts business throughout the United States and
3 operates the Amazon.com ecommerce platform.

5 III. JURISDICTION AND VENUE

7 10. This Court has subject-matter jurisdiction over this action pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1331
8 (federal question jurisdiction) and 28 U.S.C. § 1338(a) (jurisdiction over trademark claims),
9 because this action arises under the Lanham Act, 15 U.S.C. § 1051 et seq., and involves 10 claims of trademark infringement, false designation of origin, unfair competition, and 11 related violations of federal law.

12 This Court also has supplemental jurisdiction over Plaintiff's related state law claims —
13 including tortious interference with business expectancy, conversion, and intentional
14 misappropriation of trademark goodwill — under 28 U.S.C. § 1367, because those claims
15 are so related to Plaintiff's federal claims that they form part of the same case or controversy
16 under Article III of the United States Constitution.

- 17 11. This Court has personal jurisdiction over Defendant Amazon.com Services LLC because it
18 resides in this district, maintains its principal place of business in King County, Washington, 19 regularly conducts substantial business in Washington and throughout the United States, and 20 the claims asserted herein arise directly from Defendant's business activities in this district.

- 21 12. Venue is proper in this district under 28 U.S.C. § 1391(b)(1) and (b)(2), because Defendant
22 Amazon.com Services LLC resides in this district and a substantial part of the events or 23 omissions giving rise to the claims occurred here.

25 Venue is also proper in King County, Washington under RCW 4.12.025 because Defendant
26 maintains its principal place of business there and consistently centers its contractual
27 agreements, venue provisions, and litigation transfer requests around King County.
28

IV. FACTUAL ALLEGATIONS

8. Plaintiff has owned and operated numerous brands, including Cool Chimpanzee, Ebion, Skin Deep, Biological Essentials, Green Sky, and many others. These brands have been properly registered with the USPTO and properly rely on GS1 for GTIN management.
9. Plaintiff previously sold these brands on Amazon and was the original creator of their listings. Even after exiting the marketplace, Plaintiff maintained ownership of the brands and continued to license the trademarks to wholesalers and resellers.
10. Beginning in 2024, Plaintiff discovered that Amazon was allowing (and/or itself executing) brand name changes on his listings. Without Plaintiff's consent, listings he created were modified to reflect fake brand names such as "AYOJOY," "JNAB," "FQQF," "GAGACISO," "GEEGVV," and others.
11. The original branded packaging remains visible in the product photos, but the listing shows a different brand—a clear case of brand hijacking that violates both consumer protection standards and intellectual property law, and even purportedly violates Amazon's own published policies.
12. When Plaintiff or his licensees attempted to correct hijacked brand names, Amazon refused, asserting that the original brand was now considered "abusive" and that the substitute brand would now takeover the listing. In one case, Amazon wrote: "After investigating, we discovered that the 'Cool Chimpanzee' brand has a status that is ABUSIVE."

When Plaintiff sought to correct recent hijackings, Amazon responded with form notices falsely claiming that Amazon does not allow brand changes—even though Plaintiff was seeking to reverse an unauthorized brand change, not initiate one. Through these tactics, Amazon systematically misrepresented rightful brand restorations as impermissible "changes," frustrating brand owners' efforts to reclaim their intellectual property and further entrenching fraudulent brand overwrites.

1 13. Amazon has created a self-reinforcing enforcement regime in which rightful brand owners
2 are banned from correcting hijackings, while bootleggers are freely allowed to overwrite
3 listing data.

4 14. Plaintiff provided Amazon with GS1 certificates, USPTO registrations, screenshots, emails,
5 and written cease-and-desist letters. In return, he received automated responses, further
6 denials, and threats to his business.

8 15. Amazon's refusal to restore Plaintiff's brands is not an accident or oversight. It is an
9 entrenched and deliberate practice. Amazon operates one of the most technologically
10 advanced platforms in the world, fully capable of verifying brand authenticity through GS1
11 records, USPTO registrations, attorney of record data (to whom it sends verification codes 12 when it chooses), and historical listing metadata.

13 Further, Amazon maintains strict written policies stating that only brand owners may control
14 listings, that brand names cannot be changed on active and established listings, and that 15 unregistered or fictitious brands are prohibited from listing products altogether. These 16 policies exist for good reason: allowing a product sold for years under the name "Point" to 17 suddenly appear under the fictitious brand "AYOJOY" would deceive customers and violate
18 basic principles of marketplace integrity.

19 Yet in practice, Amazon permits exactly these three things it prohibits by policy — and 20 worse — it enables fake brands to overwrite real ones, blocks rightful brand owners from 21 correcting the hijackings, and retaliates against them with account suspensions, listing
22 takedowns, or threats to seize inventory and funds. It does so in flagrant and intentional 23 violation of its own fraudulent stated, which serve as binding contractual commitments to 24 brand owners like Plaintiff who build (or permit the building of) their brands on Amazon's 25 platform.

26 Meanwhile, Amazon profits more from continued sales under the misrepresented listings, 27 benefiting directly from the consumer confusion and brand misappropriation it enables. In 28 effect, Amazon has created a private totalitarian enforcement regime, where reporting a hijacker or bootlegger carries more risk than being one.

1 In many cases, Amazon is the perpetrator of the brand hijacking.

3 This pattern of misconduct has caused Plaintiff significant economic harm and irreparable
4 damage to his brands and business relationships.

6 V. CAUSES OF ACTION

8 Count I: Trademark Infringement and False Designation of Origin (15 U.S.C. §§ 9 1114, 1125(a)) and RCW 19.77 et seq

10 16. Plaintiff re-alleges all prior paragraphs as though fully set forth herein.

11
12 17. Defendant has knowingly permitted, facilitated, and in many cases directly initiated the 13 rebranding of Plaintiff's trademarked products under different names.

14 18. This conduct creates customer confusion, dilutes brand recognition, and infringes on 15 Plaintiff's exclusive trademark rights.

16
17 19. Defendant has compounded the infringement by refusing to restore Plaintiff's brand names
18 even when presented with overwhelming and irrefutable evidence, including GS1
19 registrations, USPTO certificates, original listing metadata, product packaging photographs, 20 and sales history — not to mention the primary internal authentication records already
21 maintained by Defendant, which independently confirm brand ownership without the need
22 for Plaintiff's additional submissions.

23 20. Defendant's claim that it cannot determine the rightful brand owner — despite direct access
24 to the original listing data, GS1 registration records, USPTO trademark databases, and on-
25 product branding — constitutes a willful and bad-faith refusal to correct known trademark
26 hijackings. There's no ambiguity at all in these cases.

1 And, in other contexts, Defendant routinely and instantaneously uses these same tools of
2 theirs to punish sellers for even minor technical inconsistencies, such as slight discrepancies
3 between GS1 records and listing details. Defendant's feigned inability to resolve brand
4 hijackings — despite having all necessary information in its own possession — is not a
5 mistake; it is a calculated dilatory tactic, demanding redundant documentation to obscure
6 facts already known, suppress rightful brand owners, and facilitate consumer deception.

7 21. This pattern is not legitimate enforcement. It is a fraudulent abdication of Defendant's own
8 policies and marketplace duties. When enforcement serves Amazon's interests — punishing
9 sellers — it acts with speed and precision. When enforcement would favor rightful brand
10 owners, Amazon feigns ignorance, fabricates pseudo-"investigations," and defaults to 11 calculated delay and ultimate inaction.

12 Count II: Tortious Interference with Business Expectancy

13 22. Plaintiff re-alleges all prior paragraphs.

15 23. Plaintiff maintains ongoing business relationships with various wholesalers and resellers.
16 Amazon has intentionally interfered with these relationships by refusing to correct hijacked
17 listings, blocking new listings under Plaintiff's brands, sending misleading warnings to his 18 wholesalers, and in some cases, deactivating the wholesalers' accounts entirely.

19
20 In at least one recent case, Amazon shut down the account (and seized the assets of) a small,
21 hardworking wholesaler who was legitimately reselling Plaintiff's PrimeMed brand socks
22 and other products — falsely accusing the account owner of being a "related account" of 23 Plaintiff's without evidence or due process. Plaintiff had never even met this hardworking 24 wholesaler that he knew of, that's how removed he was from being related.

25 The term "related accounts" is yet another one of Amazon's fraudulent constructs: a vague 26 and undefined policy used as a veneer of legitimacy to justify control, retaliation, and 27 outright theft.
28

24. These actions by Defendant were intentional and done without legal or contractual justification.

Count III: Conversion

25. Plaintiff re-alleges all prior paragraphs.

26. By hijacking Plaintiff's listings and blocking his ability to control or license them, Amazon has wrongfully exercised control over Plaintiff's property. In doing so, Amazon intentionally misappropriated Plaintiff's brand goodwill, commercial reputation, and marketplace recognition, leveraging these assets to enrich its own platform presence and divert consumer loyalty.

Count IV: Declaratory Relief

27. Plaintiff seeks a declaration that Amazon has no lawful right to prevent Plaintiff or his licensees from listing products under brands registered to Plaintiff.

VI. PRAYER FOR RELIEF

WHEREFORE, Plaintiff requests judgment against Defendant as follows:

A. General and statutory damages in excess of ten million dollars ($10,000,000.00), with the precise amount to be proven at trial, including damages authorized under 15 U.S.C. § 1117 for trademark infringement;

B. Preliminary and permanent injunctive relief:

(i) prohibiting Defendant from altering, overwriting, or blocking Plaintiff's brand listings without Plaintiff's consent or due process;

(ii) requiring Defendant to restore control over Plaintiff's brands and correct all improperly hijacked listings; and

(iii) enjoining Defendant from engaging in future hijackings or reclassifications of Plaintiff's trademarked products;

C. Declaratory relief affirming Plaintiff's lawful ownership and control rights over his trademarks and associated Amazon listings;

D. An award of Defendant's profits unjustly obtained through the misappropriation and false designation of Plaintiff's brands, pursuant to 15 U.S.C. § 1117(a), and as otherwise permitted by law.

E. An award of Plaintiff's costs, disbursements, and reasonable attorney's fees to the extent permitted by law;

F. Such other and further equitable, injunctive, and monetary relief as the Court deems just and proper.

G. An award of exemplary and/or punitive damages for Defendant's willful, malicious, and bad-faith conduct, in an amount to be determined at trial.

H. Plaintiff further reserves the right to seek statutory damages, enhanced damages, treble damages, and any other remedies permitted by 15 U.S.C. § 1117, including damages for willful infringement and false designation of origin, subject to proof at trial.

Dear Amazon,

I have been trying to resolve matters of intellectual property hijacking of my brands for a very long time. My IP enforcement team's research shows that Amazon is the cause of the hijacked brands, not an actual seller or traditional hijacker. Amazon is sending notices to wholesalers who buy branded products from me that more or less state that my intellectual property has done something wrong and therefore has lost the ability to be a brand on Amazon (see enclosed document where Amazon states that the brand "Cool Chimpanzee" is misusing another brand's intellectual property). None of these accusations have any basis in reality. None of these brands have ever misused any other brand. To begin with, a brand is not a person, has no mens rea, and can't do anything wrong. I am also trying to sell my intellectual property and license my intellectual property to other Amazon sellers who can re-add it to brand registry to manage it, but those applications are being denied as well (see enclosed document entitled "Brand Registry request for PrimeMed"). If I sell a brand, it shouldn't carry any stigma (whether imagined or not) from my use of it as the new owner is now in control of it. Please also see letter (enclosed) sent to a myriad of Amazon emails as well as attorneys for Amazon on Feb 13th, 2025.

Recent brand changes that need to be corrected and we need to understand how this is happening:

B0B8185TY8 – "Cool Chimpanzee" brand Manual Card Shuffler changed to fake brand "Garifon"
B09FYVSL8L – "Green Sky" brand geriatric / yoga slip socks changed to fake brand "Gagaciso"
B09SNS9SWN – "Point" brand nosebleed plugs changed to presumably fake brand "Avojoy"

Sincerely,

Benjamin J Ligeri

Dear Amazon and Attorneys of Amazon,

Wholesalers of my brands on Amazon are complaining that the brand names are changing to hijacked fake brands and they are in turn being blocked from selling product they purchased from me and my companies and being asked by Amazon for authorization/ownership of said "fake brands" in some kind of Alice in Wonderland level stunt.

I have no access to the Amazon platform. I don't sell on Amazon, I don't have access to a brand registry account or any other Amazon tools except the public:

<https://www.amazon.com/report/infringement> which is a service that no longer works.

I would like to resolve these brand new brand matters without having to file suit and injunction and I'm copying my attorneys at DWT who are handling other litigation I have with Amazon to see if they can offer any suggestions as well as Amazon department teams I've researched as possibly being the right avenue to correct these intellectual property ills.

Wholesalers are sending me cases they're filing with Amazon to show me the kinds of responses they're getting (see attached). Amazon is accusing my brands of being "malicious" somehow as if a brand could be personified to have deleterious human traits. A brand is but a name for a product that a consumer comes to know. Here's a couple examples from a brand that has done millions on the Amazon marketplace known as "Cool Chimpanzee", a brand that I acquired many years ago at the time of its launch on ecommerce sites such as Amazon.

These 300pk Cool Chimpanzee glow stars were created under the brand "Cool Chimpanzee", I remember I created the listing myself back when I was an Amazon seller. The brand is using a valid GS1 UPC registered to "Cool Chimpanzee". See attached "GS1 Statement.jpg" where GS1 claims Amazon can validate this with the GS1 database and Amazon has made the same claims before but are now asking generic sellers for GS1 documents that only I have to further complicate the matter. The entirety of documentation from Amazon that I've received from unaffiliated third parties proves Amazon is intentionally ripping these brands to retaliate against my lawsuits using tech muscle like Eric Smith. We would like to see if Amazon (now that they've been caught) would like to stop doing so and restore these brands to their natural state and thereby honor USPTO and federal laws.

If not, I will be commencing an action in my home state of Florida to address these new matters. I am not an Amazon seller, but merely an IP holder as of now, and as DWT and Amazon, and all parties are 100% aware, I am not subject to any BSA or arbitration or venue clauses

This was once super simple for Amazon to see that a listing was created under the brand "Cool Chimpanzee", and could therefore not be changed to another brand. Now Amazon's system has added multiple layers of subterfuge to make a once kindergarten-level maintenance and security process a now Space-X-level process.

Please see four screenshots of high selling products (and there are more)...

- 1) B0B1GFY6VB - Cool Chimpanzee Glow Stars changed to brand "JNAB"
- 2) B0B8185TY8 - Cool Chimpanzee Manual Card Shuffler changed to brand "Garifon"
- 3) B09FYVSL8L - Green Sky brand geriatric / yoga slip socks changed to brand "Gagaciso"
- 4) B09SNS9SWN - Point brand nosebleed plugs changed to brand "Avojoy"

What's strange is Amazon is so strict about brands. They "don't" let you change the brand of a product (and they shouldn't of course) as it is hard wired to the product and its UPC and customer expectation. None of which can be changed midstream. Amazon "doesn't" let you list under fake brands either as they require USPTO validation but these brands are all fake.

I would like to inquire about getting my brands bundled into a brand registry account where I can control and protect said brands. Short of that, I would like Amazon to see to it that these brands are restored to their proper name and gated from such changes. I can provide a list of all brands I own to Amazon if there is a special lock box they can put them in to prevent changes. In the past, ALL brands were in this lockbox across the entire Amazon marketplace, now it seems to be a "special" lockbox only earned by those who are in Amazon's special inner circle.

As you can see my attachments like JNAB CASE.jpg, Amazon is pretending to be Ms. Swan from In Living Color, claiming it would be WRONG to CHANGE the brand from JNAB to Cool Chimpanzee when the system knows quite well the brand is and has always been Cool Chimpanzee and the only change being sought is to undo the hijacking. It's SOOOO EASY to verify. The page itself shows the product and UPC, the GS1 database validates it. The Amazon historical validates it. The sales validate it. The description. Everything validates this is a brand hijacking. You have to try very hard to ignore the basic realities to put yourself in this position to begin with.

Please advise.

Hi Mary,

Validate Product Data like Amazon

Totals, many retailers and marketplaces that require companies to get authentic identification numbers that specifically link a brand to the product being sold. They check UPC barcodes in the GS1 US Data Hub, to ensure the connection before approving product listings. For example, Amazon recommends getting a Global Trade Item Number (GTIN) directly from GS1® to list products in its global marketplace.

"We verify the authenticity of product UPCs by checking the GS1 database."

Do you have the same validation process for your brand? Use GS1 US Data Hub (1) View/Use to access this centralized database where the world's largest retailers and marketplaces validate their product data.

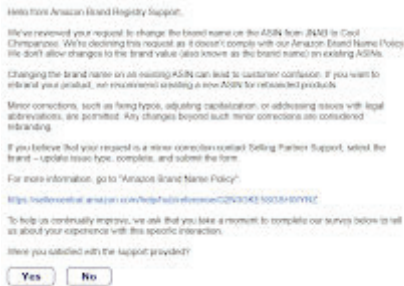

By improving the authentication of the products that they are marking, Amazon sellers can solve their operations inefficiencies, streamline their supply chain processes, and enhance the customer experience by providing accurate product information.

To Whom It May Concern at Global Specialty Products LLC

We don't know what to do about this. Amazon is changing your brands and saying they're abusive and we are working hard to change them back.

Hello from Amazon Brand Registry Support,

We see that your query is regarding all of the brands have been changing and you thought Amazon required brands to stay the same and follow GS1 guidelines, the ASIN B0B1GFY6VB has Cool Chimpanzee brand since its origin and now it just changed to JNAB and the ASIN B0B8185TY8 has been changed Cool Chimpanzee to Garifon.

If you choose to rebrand a product you must create a new ASIN rather than update an existing ASIN.

This is true even if the product does not change materially after the brand update.

Rebranding and packaging differences on products can cause customer order returns and can potentially hurt your metrics. To prevent this unwanted outcome, we don't allow the brand name to be changed for an ASIN.

For more information, go to "Amazon Brand Name Policy":

<https://sellercentral.amazon.com/help/hub/reference/G2N3GKE5SGSHWYRZ>

If the intended brand is not part of Amazon Brand Registry, we recommend that you complete registration via "Enroll a new brand" link on the Brand Registry landing page:

<https://brandregistry.amazon.com/>

To help us continually improve, we ask that you take a moment to complete our survey below to tell us about your experience with this specific interaction.

Were you satisfied with the support provided?

Thank you for selling with Amazon,

Hello from Amazon Brand Registry Support,

This is Jobvishal and I am here to assist you with your concern regarding updating the Brand name for the ASINs: B0B1GFY6VB and B0B8185TY8

Upon checking, I would like to let you know that we are unable to proceed with your request as changing brand name doesn't comply with our Amazon Brand Name Policy. We don't allow changes to the brand name on existing ASINs.

Changing the brand name on an existing ASIN can lead to customer confusion. If you want to rebrand your product, we recommend creating a new ASIN for rebranded products.

Minor corrections, such as typos, capitalization, or addressing legal abbreviations, are permitted. Any changes beyond such minor corrections are considered rebranding.

For more information, go to "Amazon Brand Name Policy":

<https://sellercentral.amazon.com/help/hub/reference/G2N3GKE5SGSHWYRZ>

Please note that we have checked everything that we should to verify the information regarding the change in Brand. I see the title with the suggested Brand name. However we are unable to go ahead as the Brand "Cool Chimpanzee" is not active and is in abusive state.

Also please be noted that Amazon does not encourage hijacking

If you believe that this listings was hijacked. I suggest you to report this violation to our investigations team. Select Report a violation of our rules on the Contact Us form link below and enter the details:

<https://sellercentral.amazon.com/cu/contact-us>

Please be sure to include the following information, as applicable:

! Your Brand Registry enrollment application has been rejected.

Why did this happen?

This decision was made due to one or more of the following reasons: a) your account was engaging in conduct that violates Brand Registry's policies, such as, but not limited to, invalid notice submissions through our notice submission channels or tampering with the catalog; b) your application or account is related to other Amazon accounts or brands that have violated Amazon or Brand Registry's policies, c) you are associated with one or more selling accounts as a primary owner and all of them have failed seller verification, d) inability to provide sufficient evidence of branding on products/packaging; e) you have a selling account that is de-activated, or f) your trademark application appears to be filed by a filing firm that may be violating US federal regulations and USPTO rules (explained below).

If you are enrolling with a US trademark, please note that the USPTO requires foreign domiciled applicants or registrants to be represented by a U.S. licensed attorney. This rule was designed to improve the quality of trademark submissions by U.S. attorneys who are bound by ethical rules to follow the USPTO rules of professional conduct and their state bar codes of conduct. The USPTO has guidance on evaluating filing firms and how to avoid potential USPTO rule violations here. Additional scrutiny may be triggered by Amazon for use of a suspicious filing firm. Attorneys suspected of misconduct may be investigated by the USPTO. If you are working through an intermediary, rather than directly with a US licensed attorney, to seek a US trademark registration or enrollment into Brand Registry, your application may be subject to additional scrutiny by Amazon and the USPTO. Before hiring an attorney or a trademark service company, check whether they are subject to an Order for Sanctions from the USPTO or listed as an entity on the Potentially Misleading Solicitations webpage. If you are concerned about the validity of your application or the conduct of any of the entities involved in your application, consult with a private U.S. attorney who is knowledgeable about trademark law (and not connected to any entity listed on the Order for Sanctions or Potentially Misleading Solicitations webpage) to evaluate your application. If you need help finding an attorney, you can find resources from the USPTO here. You can also leverage the Amazon IP Accelerator program to connect with a curated network of vetted IP law firms. You can learn more about the program here. Please note that the use of a firm vetted by the Amazon IP Accelerator program is not required for enrollment in Brand Registry.

Please note that enrollment in Brand Registry is at Amazon's sole discretion. Any misuse of Amazon's Brand Protection tools or suspected misconduct in the acquisition or maintenance of your intellectual property rights may lead to restrictions or removal from Brand Registry. If after having read the USPTO's rules and regulations, you have reason to believe that your trademark application may have been filed in violation of USPTO's rules and regulations, you may choose to file a new application that is in accordance with the USPTO's rules and regulations. Refer to guidelines for eligibility in Brand Registry. Once you have a new trademark application, you may submit a new enrollment request in Brand Registry. Please note that there are several things you can do to protect your trademark application or registration listed here.

If at any point in the next 90 days, we find that your account is eligible for enrollment in Brand Registry, we will resume the enrollment application process automatically. In such an event, we will send you a communication proactively stating that the application process has been resumed along with a case ID.

Hello from Amazon Brand Registry Support,

We've reviewed your request to change the brand name from JNAB to Cool Chimpanzee. Let me guide you with the necessary information.

After investigating, we discovered that the "Cool Chimpanzee" brand has a statue that is ABUSIVE.

We reserve the right to decline any change where we have identified that the to-be-added account has been involved in abusive conduct on our websites, or is related to an account that was used for such abusive conduct.

Hence, We're declining this request as it doesn't comply with our Amazon Brand Name Policy. We don't allow changes to the brand value (also known as brand name) on existing ASINs. Let me guide you with the necessary information.

Changing the brand value on an existing ASIN from "generic" to a brand name or from a brand name to "generic" can lead to customer confusion.

If you believe that the product detail page represents a listing or policy violation, go to "Report a violation":

After the complaint has been submitted, our investigations team will contact you directly regarding the outcome.

To help us continually improve, we ask that you take a moment to complete our survey below to tell us about your experience with this specific interaction.

Were you satisfied with the support provided?

Best regards,

Patumrat P.
